REQUIREMENTS AND/OR ADMISSION TESTS

Students should have a Bachelor's Degree or a comparable qualification. They should also prove knowledge of the language of the host institution. They must also complete an online application form and attach a motivation letter, a CV, the official copy of their previous academic record and diploma, passport, two letters of recommendation.

LEARNING OUTCOMES

GEMMA provides a unique opportunity to benefit from mobility as students are expected to study at different European universities. This graduate programme gives the possibility to obtain a double degree from the home and the host university within the GEMMA Consortium.

PROGRAMME CONTENT

The Master programme in Women's and Gender Studies is an interdisciplinary and interuniversity programme. The Masters offers subjects in the areas of women's studies: literatures, social sciences, law, cultural studies, history and history of art.

CAREER OPPORTUNITIES

GEMMA provides high quality academic education and professional skills for personnel working or intending to work in the areas of women's studies, gender studies and equal opportunities across Europe.
